Minnesota Adult and Teen Challenge Acquires Building from Tubman Organization

Facility will be used to expand and enhance women's program

MINNEAPOLIS – Minnesota Adult and Teen Challenge (MnTC) announced today that it has purchased the property located at 3111 First Avenue in Minneapolis from the Tubman organization. Minnesota Adult and Teen Challenge will use its new property to expand and enhance the programs and services it offers for women struggling with substance use disorder.

While Minnesota Adult and Teen Challenge is the new owner of the facility, Tubman will remain in the building through June 2020 to provide services to its existing clients before moving into their other locations. Starting in summer 2020, Minnesota Adult and Teen Challenge will renovate the facility with plans for a grand opening in early 2021.

Saul Selby, vice president of clinical services for Minnesota Adult and Teen Challenge, says, “Women face unique challenges when it comes to recovery from substance use disorder, and we’re designing new programs and services that further enhance our ability to address their specific needs. We’re thrilled to acquire this new property in order to help even more women find freedom from substance use.”

The purchase was made possible thanks to generation donations provided by the Sea Foam organization and HOM Furniture.

Pastor Rich Scherber, CEO of Minnesota Adult and Teen Challenge, says, “We’re so fortunate to have long-standing relationships with generous supporters who come alongside us to help others. Their support allows us to continue to grow and to serve more people every year. Our work would not be possible without them.”
